

ABSTRACT

Methods and reagents for the detection and/or quantification of silanol groups on a silica surface are provided. In certain embodiments, the subject methods are used to evaluate the channel surface of a silica capillary tubing. This evaluation can facilitate methods for derivatizing and/or chemically modifying such surfaces.